Savings Dwindle In Boom Year

False Prosperity Is Label on 1948

By CHARLES MOLONY
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—It now appears that one reason why 1948 was such a boom year was that the nation's families, by and large, spent part of their nest eggs.

For all the record high marks it made in income and profits and employment, 1948 was just a long-awaited "rainy day" for half the families who had saved against its coming.

That, at least, is what they told the people who made a sample survey for the federal reserve boards to see how people were faring economically.

"Emergencies and sickness" were named by that many people as a cause for their having less in government bonds and bank accounts in early 1949 than they had in early 1948.

It wasn't the only reason. Nearly half—including vast numbers of those who cited sickness and emergencies—said they'd blown some savings on a car, the television set, some furniture, or something of that sort.

A third of all families put down the deflation of their savings hoards to spending on non-durable goods and services—plain "living costs" in some cases.

Meandering

By Wash Fayette

Much of this community's sand, other than limestone sand from the quarries in southern Fayette County, comes from the Scioto River, and I understand it is delivered here at about $2.50 per yard, and the limestone sand is delivered at $1.50 or more per ton.

I have told you before in this column, that there is a vast amount of sand not very deep under the surface, in Paint Creek Valley, in and near Washington C. H., much of it being with gravel, and in other places the glacial deposits are entirely of sand.

Recently while headed out Imperial Valley, from Los Angeles, California, to Phoenix, Arizona, on the "Golden State" on the Southern Pacific Railroad we had passed the famous Salton Sea, 248 feet below sea level, and huge sand hills began looming up to the south, extending from near the Salton Sea to just west of Yuma, Arizona, to the Mexican border.

I thought of how we receive our sand back here at $2.50 a yard, after it is hauled 25 miles, and how, stacked up there in a great ridge of dunes, some of them 500 feet in height, was billions of tons of choice sand, with no takers at any price.

Every strong wind carries more of the sand from the desert wastes and piles it up on the shifting dunes, which are more than 10 miles in width at some points, and 45 miles in length.

Due to the shifting sands, nothing can grow upon the sand hills.

How I wished I had just one of those large sand hills piled up near Washington C. H. I would sell you a lot of sand cheap, and yet make a fortune out of the one hill of sand.

VOLUNTEER WORKERS (top photo) see what the earth looks like where the excavation for the new swimming pool will be dug in Washington Park. They are shown, reading from left to right: Dick Patton (in the hole); Eli Craig, Tom Mark, Harris Willis and Frank Baker (pointing where the pool will be located). Street in Capital Named For Ohio Five Miles Long

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Starting today, the city's beautiful Riverside Drive will be known as Ohio Drive.

The Buckeye State yesterday won its long fight to have a street in the Nation's Capital named in its honor. Ohio had been the only state without a street named after it.

The street name change was approved by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the order was signed by Secretary of the Interior Krug.

Ohio Drive starts near the Lincoln Memorial and winds for five miles through wide green parks along the Potomac River. It rounds Hains Point and almost doubles back to end at the 14th Street (U. S. Highway No. 1) bridge.

Travelers entering Washington over the Memorial Bridge will find Ohio Drive the first street sign greeting them.

Stewardess Heroine In Airliner Crash

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 12—(AP)—A pretty and plucky stewardess was heroine of a northeast airliner crash from which 27 persons escaped safely last night.

Miss Patricia Donnellan, 23, of North Quincy, Mass., a rookie at her job, calmly herded the passengers out a rear door—a scant two minutes before the plane was enveloped in flames on Portland Municipal Airport.

The new, $400,000 Convair—from New York and Boston—was a total loss.

Capt. Roderick Cote, 40, of Melrose, Mass., the pilot, said the propellers of the twin engine plane accidentally reversed 15 or 20 feet above the runway "and we started to plow straight down."

"Then our landing gear collapsed and the sparks began to fly."

The big plane slithered on its belly for several hundred feet in a shower of sparks. Then the right engine caught fire.

Lawyer Says He Was Slugged By Police in Columbus Jail

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—(AP)—The first witness in an investigation of alleged brutality by Columbus policemen yesterday testified he was treated with "unwarranted violence."

Otis C. Buchanan, a 35-year-old Columbus attorney, told the three-member investigating panel he was manhandled and knocked out by a half dozen or more policemen when he was arrested last Sept. 10 on an intoxication charge.

Mayor James A. Rhodes ordered the special investigation after the Columbus Bar Association charged the police department with 11 specific acts of maltreatment of prisoners.

The attorney said he asked to use a telephone after he was arrested and taken to city jail. He claimed a policeman answered his request with abusive language.

Buchanan said when he repeated his request to use the telephone, a policeman knocked his glasses off and struck him on the head with a blackjack.

"I became incensed and fought three or four of them—knocked down two, I'm sure," the attorney testified. "I was fighting. I didn't know what else to do."

Police Inspector Thomas A. Scully and eight policemen testified that Buchanan started the fight.

Minimum Wage Bill Gets Taft's Support

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—A 75-cent-an-hour minimum wage bill seemed today to have a clear—if lengthy—road ahead of it in the Senate following House passage of the measure.

Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate GOP policy committee, told a reporter he will support the 75-cent floor. He predicted most Republicans will join him. Taft forecast eventual Senate passage of the measure in about the form it was approved by the House yesterday on a 361 to 35 vote.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, has put the bill on the administration's "must list." It carries out a pledge made in the Democratic national platform last year, so far as raising the minimum wage from 40 cents to 75 cents an hour is concerned.

13 Is Unlucky; Leads to Jail

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12—(AP)—The case of Jerry Johnson, police say, is pretty good proof the number 13 is unlucky.

Detective Nathan Thompson said yesterday the "13" Johnson has tattooed on his left thumb led to his arrest on robbery charges.

Thompson said it all happened this way:

A soda fountain attendant and two young women, all recent robbery victims, reported they were held up by a man with a "13" tattooed on his right thumb.

Johnson tried to get rid of the telltale number by burning off the tattoo with a hot knife, but wound up at a doctor's office with an infected thumb. The doctor reported the incident to police and Johnson was arrested.

Thompson said Johnson told him he had the 13 put on his thumb when he was serving in the U. S. navy "because I thought it might bring me luck."

Construction To Start Soon, Head of Committee Reveals

Volunteer workers are helping to bring the swimming pool to an actuality in Washington Park.

For the past week they have been working, clearing the swimming pool site so that construction can be started.

Thursday six volunteers, biggest turnout to date, showed up to get the ground cleared of old fences, trees, weeds and trash.

Frank Baker, who is head of the building committee for the pool, has been working in his spare time for about a week cutting down weeds with a power cutter.

Considerable headway was made Thursday at the site when Harris Willis showed up with a power saw. One big section was entirely cleared of trees.

The swimming pool site is located west of the drive-way into the park. Plans call for the pool to be constructed immediately south of the old bathhouse.

There are plans to locate a play area, shuffleboard court and other recreation features in the area now being cleared.

Those who have watched the work at the park have been encouraged that at last some actual work is being done on the swimming pool project.

The building committee is making plans to start construction as soon as the site has been readied.

Baker said the pool was to be built immediately south of an old bathhouse which stands on the site of the pool project. It will extend east and west.

Plans call for a shuffleboard court to be laid out between a wading pool and a big elm tree, which stands on the western edge of the site.

A parking area would be located immediately east of the driveway into Washington Park.

The southwestern corner of the Washington Park was chosen for the swimming pool site since it is the farthest removed from waters which sometimes go over the banks of Paint Creek.

While the site is on higher and more level ground, the rest of the park is full of ruts and in need of considerable grading.

Thursday considerable head—

Same Old Stuff From Germans

Allies Condemned By Politicians

By BRACK CURRY
FRANKFURT, Germany, Aug. 12—(AP)—An American military government spokesman lashed out last night at the "pronounced nationalism" of western Germany's federal election campaign. It was the first official U. S. comment on anti-allied attacks by German candidates, up for election Sunday.

The spokesman declared in a German-language broadcast that "not a single party has a good word for the positive work of the western allies."

"One is forced to make comparisons with the past and to look with some anxiety to the future, which is being entrusted to such a forgetful, nationalistic people," he said.

Granges Reinstated But Tension Remains

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—(AP)—Seven Licking County granges are back in good standing with the state organization today. But the dispute between several county Grange members and State Grange Master Joseph W. Fichter may not be over.

Fichter and the executive committee of the Grange restored the "dormant" Granges because the seven had "paid their dues in full." At the same time, Fichter and the committee issued a statement vigorously criticizing the Newark Grange for withholding its dues.

The statement said the Newark group had "violated both the law and the spirit of the Grange" in bringing suit against Secretary Melisse Orr and Treasurer Monte Orr to recover records, bank books and bonds which the officers had turned over to Fichter.

The state Grange master said the conduct of the Newark Grange was "inexcusable and unprecedented" and should subject the Grange to disciplinary action.

He added, however, the "wrongful conduct" of the Grange was "engineered" by only 33 members of the group, which he said has 400 members.

Both pharmacists and physicians must keep complete records of all barbiturates handled by them for a period of two years. Inventory of stock on hand must be kept up to date by pharmacists and physicians. Their records may be inspected by representatives of the State Board of Pharmacy at any time.

New Sensations In Inquiry into 'Five Percenters'

Deep Freezer Gifts To High-ups Hinted; Vaughan Under Fire

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—A report that Mrs. Harry S. Truman was among notables who received deep freezers from a concern figuring in the Senate's five percent inquiry today brought this reply from Presidential Secretary Charles D. Ross:

"I have no information whatever about that."

Ross was told a news story named Mrs. Truman, along with Chief Justice Vinson, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, James K. Vardaman, federal reserve board governor and George E. Allen, former RFC member and presidential intimate.

"I know nothing whatever about that, either," Ross said when the other names were mentioned.

Vinson left a White House cabinet meeting a few minutes later and told reporters that since the Senate investigation committee is making an inquiry, "I believe I prefer that the matter be developed by the committee."

"I feel I ought not make any statement," the chief justice said. Others Keep Silence

There was no immediate comment from any of the others.

The matter of the deep freeze units entered the hearing yesterday when a Milwaukee businessman testified that he shipped one in 1945 to Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, President Truman's army aide.

Mr. Truman told his news conference later in the day that nothing brought out at the inquiry so

Rep. Brown Wants Clinton County Base

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) has demanded a report from the air force on whether it really plans to abandon its Clinton County base at Wilmington, Ohio, he said today.

Brown said the air force declined to discuss over the telephone reports that it is about to abandon the base, but agreed to make a written report.

"If they try to argue that abandonment of the air base would be in the interests of economy," he said, "I'd consider that pretty ridiculous at a time when they are seeking the biggest appropriation they ever had."

11 New Polio Cases Reported in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—(AP)—Eleven new cases of poliomyelitis were reported to the state health department today. The year's total cases now stand at 387, compared with 290 for the corresponding period of 1948.

Today's cases were: Summit County three; Auglaize two; and one each in Tuscarawas, Miami, Montgomery, Darke, Franklin and Defiance.

'Gone with the Wind' Author Hit by Car and Near Death

Father Killed By Boy To Get Bicycle Money

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Aug. 12—(AP)—State police said today 13-year-old Jerry Riggs shot and killed his father to get $60 for a bicycle.

The boy is being held in jail here on a murder charge. The body of his father, Harry Livingstone Riggs, 48, was found in a cornfield Wednesday at nearby Ralimansville.

Cpl. R. C. Culp of the West Virginia state police said he had pieced together this story:

Jerry was angry with his father because of several spankings and refusal of money for a bicycle.

The boy lay in wait behind a stump in the cornfield and fired his .22 rifle when the father approached. Riggs was hit in the chest.

Jerry then took $1.315 from the house, hid all but $60 of it, and came to Buckhannon to buy the bicycle.

He started back home by way of a church social so he could show his new wheel to the other kids, including an 11-year-old sister and an 8-year-old brother. Then he pedaled on home to resume his watch over a 6-year-old brother.

The other youngsters found the father's body when they came home from church. Their mother is dead.

Charges Denied By GOP Leaders

President Clashes With Congress Again

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—President Truman's assertion that Republican filibusters are delaying money bills in the Senate brought GOP counter charges today that the Democrats are stalling Congress' adjournment.

Senator Morse (R-Ore) told a reporter he thinks there is a Democratic plot to keep Congress in session and thereby keep Republican lawmakers off the stump this fall.

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, retorted that this is "only a figment of the senator's imagination."

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the GOP floor leader, and Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of his party's policy committee, took issue with the president on the money bill question.

The president made his filibuster-delay statement at a news conference yesterday.

Warning Brushed Off

At the same time he brushed off the statement by former president Hoover that the nation is "on the last mile" toward collectivism because of government spending and taxation.

Asked about this, Mr. Truman replied: "It sounds funny to me. I don't know what that is, but I don't think it is so."

Senator Taft said forcefully that there hasn't been any Republican filibuster.

"There has been no filibuster by Republicans on any bill," Taft declared. "We have consistently fought increases made by the Democratic Appropriations Com-

Bumper Crops May Result in Price Declines

Meat Above Parity But Grains Still Under Support Level

BY OVID A. MARTIN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—The price advantage farmers have enjoyed since late 1941 may turn into a disadvantage within a few months.

So predicted Agriculture Department economists today as they eyed prospective bumper crops to be harvested in the fall and a sharply increasing supply of pork due to hit butcher shops in a month or so.

These seasonally increasing supplies of farm products are expected to pull down prices of many products.

The department has a standard for measuring farm prices. This standard is called "parity." When prices are at the level of this standard, they are deemed to be equally fair to the farmer and those who buy his products.

A July price survey showed the farm price level to be two percent above this parity or "fair standard." That meant that, on the basis of this measuring system, farmers had a slight advantage over users of his products.

In the decade before the war, the consumer had all the better of it. Farm prices averaged below parity. The war pulled farm prices upward. In December, 1941, the farms' long disadvantage turned into a slight advantage. Month by month the farmers' favorable position grew and grew, until price ceilings brought a halt. But removal of price controls after the war permitted further increases.

By October, 1946, farmers' prices reached a record peak of 33 percent above the parity level. Then as postwar world shortages began to disappear, farm prices started downward.

Last month's level is the lowest

B-36 Is Defended By Air Force Chief

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg today said that Russia is the "only major military threat" to the security of the United States and the world.

He made the statement before the House armed services committee, where he appeared as a witness in the investigation of the B-36 bomber and its history.

Gen. Vandenberg said "false rumors and innuendoes" brought on the investigation and that this has damaged air force morale. He urged the committee "to remove the burden of these charges of dishonesty" before going into other phases of the inquiry.

He also defended Air Secretary Symington, who, he said, "has labored tirelessly to produce effective and economical military air power for the defense of this country."

Vandenberg said this must be the historical setting for the inquiry into why the air force pushed the B-36. And he said that he thinks these two questions are involved:

The wisdom of military decisions on the strategic use of air power and the wisdom of depending on the B-36.

"We are convinced," Vandenberg declared, "that for the next few years the B-36 provides the spearhead for the ready-for-combat force in being which this country must constantly have at hand. Like any other aircraft it will in due time be superseded by a better one."

"It successor is now in the design stage."

Hummel Candidate For Ohio Governor

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12—(AP)—Edward J. Hummel, former secretary of state, announced today he would go after the state's No. 1 job—governor.

He said he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in the May, 1950, primary.

"In my three terms as secretary of state," Hummel's formal announcement said, "the people of Ohio have come to know well the forces I have had to oppose, the principles for which I stand have fought for and proposed to continue to fight for."

Depression Warning By Steel Magnate

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—The chairman of the American Management Association told presidential fact-finders today that if steelworkers win their pay demands it could plunge the U.S. into a depression.

John M. Hancock, appearing in behalf of the steel industry, said that any wage increases granted the CIO United Steelworkers is likely to "go through the whole economy" and would lead "to a national pattern of another round of wage increases."

He said "the issue facing the country—and this board—is: does America want more inflation? Can America stand more inflation?"

If the economy proceeds along lines that "will surely cause inflation," Hancock said it would mean "the end of our kind of economy."

German Politicians

The spokesman declared German politicians agree on only one point: "A pronounced nationalism which sees all right on one side and all injustice and bad will on the other side."

He warned that "opinion abroad has not overlooked the awakened nationalism nor the sudden forgetfulness of German politicians concerning the assistance the western allies have rendered."

Even as he spoke candidates for the new parliament carried on their heated attacks on the allies.

Both American and British observers claim these anti-allied remarks have resulted in a general apathy among the German voters. These observers predict a growing distrust of German political leaders will result in a comparatively light vote in Sunday's elections.

West Germans choose a 400-member parliament for an 11-state republic in the U. S., British and French zones. This parliament then will name a president and a prime minister (chancellor) who will organize the government.

One British observer said: "The Germans simply don't have any faith in their parties. They have been offered no constructive program—only attacks against the allies. Youthful especially are distrustful. Few of them will vote."

fight. They said it was necessary to subdue him and place him in a strait jacket.

Charles F. Fouts of nearby Gahanna, said he witnessed the fight. He told the committee Buchanan knocked one policeman down, another over a counter and a third against a wall. A fourth policeman called for help, Fouts testified.

During questioning, Buchanan said he had signed a release absolving the policemen of any liability for injuries suffered.

The release was signed, he added, before Police Prosecutor Glenn Kemp asked the court for dismissal of the charges against him.

Court records show Buchanan's case was dismissed for "lack of evidence."

The committee's next hearing will be held Monday.

Farm Outlook

since December, 1941. Officials expect prices to fall below the parity point by late fall if present crop production prospects are borne out.

Not all individual farm commodities have followed the pattern of the general farm price level.

Some products have been selling for much less than parity for months, particularly the grains, potatoes, dairy products, eggs, cotton and olives.

Other—meat animals in particular—have been bringing much more than parity and more than the general farm price level.

Now far below the so-called fair standard is it possible for farm prices to fall? That depends largely on the effectiveness and scope of government farm price support programs. The government is committed to programs designed to keep most major products from dropping below 90 percent of parity.

Considerable work remains, however. Volunteer workers who would like to help in the site preparation can get a job by contacting Baker.

far had changed his opinion of Vaughan in the slightest.

"Well, I'll be damned," was the first reaction of Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.), a member of the investigating group.

When today's hearing resumed, McCarthy followed up that comment with a formal demand that Vaughan be called for questioning.

McCarthy based his demand chiefly, however, on Vaughan's reported efforts in connection with a race track construction case rather than the deep freeze matter.

The name of another Truman aide—President Assistant John R. Steelman—entered the investigation today.

The Senate committee is looking into the question of whether improper influence has figured in the awarding of government contracts and the administration of federal regulations.

The inquiry was touched off by reports that James V. Hunt, a former army officer and War Assets Administration consultant, had boasted of friendship with Vaughan and other officials in promising to help land government contracts for a fee.

Steelman's name came out in this way:

A committee investigator took the stand and said Dr. Norman Armitage, vice president of the Deering Milliken Research Trust, of Greenwich, Conn., had been referred to Hunt as a man who could help him get some research contracts for the trust.

Flanagan said that in the fall of 1948 Armitage met with Hunt in Washington and was given a list of names which Hunt said he should check as references. These included:

Steelman, Maj. General Herman Fieldman, then deputy quartermaster general; Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, chief of the army chemical corps; Stuart Symington, secretary for air; Eugene Zuckert, assistant secretary for air; Senator Young Bridges (R-NH), Col. Paul Young, vice president of Air Craft Engine Parts Corp., and a number of others.

Flanagan said Armitage contacted several of these including Steelman and that Armitage had made a notation that Steelman said Hunt was "O. K."

A similar round of approval, Flanagan said, was noted as coming from Zuckert.

Armitage did not contact all of the references, Flanagan said. Those he did not see included Generals Gidman and Waitt, both of whom were suspended last July.

Some Discrepancies
But later on Flanagan produced memorandums from Hunt's files showing that Hunt had personally introduced Armitage to both officers.

Vaughan's name popped up in the hearing earlier this week during testimony by Housing Expediter Tighe Woods. He told the committee that Vaughan called him to the White House and told him some of Vaughan's friends were interested in getting a construction permit for Tanforan Race Track in California.

Woods also related that three days later Vaughan called at Woods office and asked him to "please hurry up" the permit. The permit was granted the next day.

Senator McCarthy reviewed this testimony today and noted that when Mr. Truman was asked about the race track matter yesterday, the chief executive replied that he did not know whether Vaughan was involved in the Tanforan case and that neither did the reporter who asked the question.

McCarthy said he has hesitated to say that Vaughan should be summoned, but that in view of Mr. Truman's comment he feels Vaughan now should be summoned.

McCarthy said such a step is necessary because Vaughan "not only is the president's aid, but the coordinator of veterans' affairs."

McCarthy said the committee should "explore the extent of his (Vaughan's) activities" with respect to Tanforan. He said it appears that Mr. Truman doubts the testimony of Woods "even though he (Woods) is his own appointee."

McCarthy spoke out a few minutes after Chairman Hoyer (D-NC) left the room. Hoyer has said all along that if the investigation developed anything that warranted calling Vaughan, he would be summoned.

Hoyer has said he wants the committee to get a full picture before deciding whether to ask Vaughan to testify.

McCarthy's demand evoked no comment from other committee members resent at the time.

The deep freeze issue was the highlight of yesterday's committee session.

At the outset of today's hearing Hoyer said "the staff has not been able to finish its investigation

That's the perfume firm which fast-talking John Maragon, one of the key figures in the investigation, has said he worked for at that time.

Gross was all set to go on from there and name, committee members said later, other Washingtonians to whom he said he sent freezers for the Verley Company.

But the probers cut him short after talking down the mild protests of two Republican members of the group, McCarthy and Senator Mundt of South Dakota. Mundt, who remarked that the hush-hush business created an "aroma of mystery," managed to get into the record before the hold-everything order that it was his assumption Vaughan had not paid for the freezer.

Later Hoyer told reporters he called a halt to Gross' testimony because shipment of the freezers "might have been a perfectly innocent thing," he added.

"We want to find out the circumstances before we let any more of it go into the record. We don't want to smear anyone."

Grain Market

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(AP)—Grains dipped during the first half of the session and then rallied in the last half on the Board of Trade today. The net result was another dull day without much change in price.

Chief feature was selling of September corn against purchased of the deferred months, largely by professional traders. September at one time fell to a new low since May. Part of the weakness was attributed to further declines in cash corn prices.
Soybeans rallied toward the close but had a weak undertone all day influenced in part by the sharp drop in hog prices for one day in several weeks. Even an increase of 1/4 cent a pound in tallow and grease prices could not help lead.

Financial Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—(AP)—A soggy decline in the stock market today carried prices down a trifle with a few issues sinking a point or more.

Trading bogged down as prices receded. That's been the performance all week—expansion on the rise and contraction on the fall.

The rail group started out in mixed fashion and then fell away for fractions to a point. They were unimpressed by the freight rate increase of 3 1/2 percent granted Thursday over present rates.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Congressman Minniver Mistletoe goes home and tells the folks: "Why, sure. Congress passed a housing bill for the low-income people. Now I think congress ought to do it for you moderate income folks."

"In fact, I introduced a bill in congress to do just that. I'll show you. Here's a copy of the very bill with my name on it."

Sure enough. There it is. Just as he said. But maybe he forgets to tell them how he came to get his name on the bill in the first place. For instance:

Last May a congressman introduced a housing bill for moderate-income families. A couple of months later came another congressman who, for some reason, wanted his own name on the bill so, without changing a word in the bill itself, he scratched out the name of the first congressman and wrote in his own name in ink.

Then the bill was sent down to the government printer where new copies of the same bill were made except that now the second congressman's name was on it.

He may go home later and tell the folks about the bill, and himself. Maybe he had another reason for doing what he did.

There's a lot of that done. In the house there's a rule that only one member's name can appear on a bill.

Just to show how much support that particular bill has, a whole gang of other congressmen may have the same bill reprinted with their name on it.

All this costs the taxpayers money, of course, since it's the government printer who does the printing, and the cost of printing a bill depends upon the number of pages.

For instance, the idea of a world federation has a lot of support in the house.

About 103 bills — all identical but bearing in each case the name of a different congressman — were introduced to back up world federation.

In the senate there's no rule like that of the house. There any number of senators all can have their names lumped together on one bill.

And a congressman's name on a bill doesn't mean he had anything to do with writing it. The job may have been done for him by the bill-writing experts employed by congress, after he told them what he wanted.

Or, maybe it was written by the lawyers in some government agency. Even by the lawyers of some outside organization which got a Congressman to introduce a bill for it as his own.

Some congressmen don't always remember—or even recognize—a bill they introduced. For example: Rep. Wolverton, New Jersey republican, is a member of the house interstate commerce committee. Sitting with other committee members this week, he was discussing a railway safety bill.

It had been introduced this year in congress by the committee chairman, Rep. Crosser, Ohio Democrat. There were some things about the bill which Wolverton disliked.

He protested that the committee never had been told who wrote it. Just then William J. Patterson, a member of the interstate commerce commission, spoke up.

He said he and a member of his staff had written the bill a year ago and that a year ago it was introduced for them by Wolverton. This year it was reintroduced by Crosser.

Wolverton remembered then and said he had introduced it as courtesy for the ICC although, when doing that, congressmen may not like everything in the bill.

Stabbing Suspect Trained by Dogs

WELLINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Using a bloodhound, police followed a trail for seven miles early today and arrested a Negro wanted for stabbing his landlord.

Captured in a field seven miles north of here was Fred W. Lott, 33, accused of stabbing Gather Glenn in an argument over a board bill.

Police Chief Henry J. Miller of nearby Sheffield Lake, who owns several bloodhounds, was called in to lead the two-hour hunt.

Benefit Offering Set by Adventists

An offering will be taken up in all Seventh Day Adventist churches on August 13 for the benefit of the College of Medical Evangelists, Loma Linda, California.

The college cost $5.1 million to operate last year and includes the School of Medicine, School of Graduate Medicine, School of Physical Therapy and School of Dietetics.

It also controls the School Laboratory and X-ray Technique, School of Tropical and Preventive Medicine, School of Nursing, Loma Linda Sanitarium and Hospital, in White Memorial Hospital and the Loma Linda Foundation.

Dr. Charles Anderson from the Worthington Sanitarium, a graduate of the college at Loma Linda, was guest speaker at the Seventh Day Adventist Church last Sunday.

Dr. Anderson, born of missionary parents in Tokyo, Japan, was camp director for the Adventists at the Tar Hollow Camp this year.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

•Good Religion Is Happy Religion

By ROY L. SMITH

The Book of the Psalms in the Old Testament is, actually, a collection of at least five books, and in some instances individual books consist of several collections of psalms.

It is a little as if the modern hymn books of several denominations should be combined in one large hymn book. There would be some duplications but there would also be some hymns which were the special favorites of particular groups.

In the King James version of the Bible the divisions are not made plain, but in the more modern translations are clearly identified. Each one of the collections represents a group of ancient psalms sung at a particular time or for particular occasions.

The Great Festival Collection

In this week's Sunday school lesson we are invited to study eleven psalms which were used by the Hebrews as a part of their liturgical worship at the time of their lowest fortunes. It must be remembered that all such poems were memorized by the entire nation, for there were no manuscript copies available for congregational use, and in this way the songs became a part of the cultural achievement of the nation. Incidentally, their familiarity with such noble verse and such inspiring ideas must have been a marvelous contribution to their national spirit.

Good Religion Starts Songs

It is one of the peculiarities of the Christian religion that wherever it appears it starts men singing. When the American soldiers arrived in the South Pacific and began mingling with the islanders they soon discovered that those islands which had been touched by the missionaries exhibited a life in which singing was a conspicuous part. There was a vast difference between the music of the savages and the music of the people who had been brought under the influence of Christianity.

doubtedly sung or chanted by the first century Church. In the account of the last hours of Jesus with his disciples it is said that they sang a hymn together before they went out to the Garden of Gethsemane. Christianity in the lands dominated by paganism has distinguished itself by the fact that it has started its converts singing. In all this the Christians are following in the path of their spiritual sires, the Jews, who gave them the greatest hymn book that has come down to us out of ancient times—the Book of the Psalms.

Holidays and Holy Days

The great festival days of the Jews were all occasions associated with some aspect of religion—the Passover, Pentecost, and the feast of the tabernacles. In this there is a certain similarity with the great holidays. Both in Canada and the United States the majority of the national observances are associated with great spiritual experiences. The holidays of the western world began as holy days.

The Temple and Joy

The Temple in Jerusalem was associated in the Jewish mind with the happiest occasions and experiences through which men ever lived. The great festivals were anything but melancholy even though they may have been solemn and serious at times. On the other hand, however, some of the best beloved feasts were occasions of great hilarity, exuberant joy, and intense delight. It has been one of the mistakes of many churches that the church house has been surrounded with a type of sanctity that has resulted in a morbid type of religion. There have been many who would have sympathized with the woman who complained that her pastor had not "made her cry for three Sundays."

It is a matter and time for sober reflection when men come into the presence of the Living God, but it ought also to be an experience of transcendent joy when righteous men meet their maker unafraid and receive from him a new assurance of his delight in them. When the churches learn to make room for more wholesome joy in their services they will find their sanctuaries crowded.

A School Program Must Look Toward Future

The Board of Education of this city deserves public commendation for its action this week in deciding against asking any increase in the school operation levy, outside the 10 mill limitation, and in rescinding its earlier plan to promote a $40,000 bond issue for emergency class rooms.

Especially to the credit of local school authorities is their intention to enter upon an economical program for the next year or two, pending a careful study of school needs based upon thorough investigation in which, it is intimated, the help of a citizens' research committee, composed of civic minded and competent business people and taxpayers, will be sought. The hope is expressed that through this committee, a comprehensive and constructive future school operation and building program can be recommended which will win complete public confidence and help.

This may mean some inconvenience and perhaps a little hardship in meeting increasing needs for school facilities for the next year or two because of crowded classroom conditions in some of the schools. However it seems reasonable that the public will listen with more sympathetic interest to future proposals made if the people are convinced that such recommendations are worked out with real vision, and with a view to economy of operation and efficiency, to meet genuine needs for the next 15 to 25 or more years.

Year by year stop-gap improvements, subject to quick changes of opinions and of personnel, are not looked upon with favor. A comprehensive plan, such as has been suggested, should have been in preparation two to five years ago when some of the present conditions could be seen coming.

The public is interested in our schools. It wants good schools and sufficient facilities. Very definitely, however, the taxpayers want their money's worth, both as to physical school property and a fundamentally sound educational program for our school children.

The public objects to waste, but will be liberal and broadminded toward school plans when it believes those plans are the result of careful and extensive study, not only by school authorities but also by progressive minded, capable, unselfish taxpayers who have to carry the financial burden.

Need For Self-Help

One of the worst situations to emerge from the war is the appearance of a spirit of helplessness in many areas of the world. Although this phenomenon is by no means universal there has been far too much of it for comfort. The contrast between dependence in Italy, to a large degree in France, and even in Great Britain, and the independence manifested in Belgium and the Netherlands represents to a remarkable extent the difference in economic and governmental forms of these nations.

Where the socialist approach has taken the place of the capitalist-democratic state, dependence appears to be the rule. Where capitalism is still the dominant factor in the national economy, self-reliance is in the saddle. It appears to be no accident that most of the strength of Europe comes from capitalistic resourcefulness. Nor does it appear conversely to be unexpected that the socialist nations are ready, willing, and eager to take whatever can be obtained without too much concern for the future.

The symptoms of a sick society are clearly evident. One of the first requirements of a healthy civilization must be the restoration of a spirit of self-help and national pride in the ability of the people to rebuild their culture from within.

One Word Just Leads to Another

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(P)—What kind of people are the most interesting?

Yes, I know live people are—but what kind of live people?

Will Hazlett in a celebrated essay once concluded that the conversation of authors was the most interesting of any. This may have been true in a more leisurely day, when writers pushed a goose quill across the page.

It isn't true any more. Authors are a somber crew today. I leave drop at their gatherings fairly often and they are like nothing more than a convention of mummies. Any bon mots they have in mind they don't say aloud; they save them for their electric typewriters. Rather than talk they prefer silently playing the "Match Game" to see who buys the next drink.

Perhaps they are chary of using words because they know the value of words—they are paid for using them. When they do break out in conversation, it is usually along these lines:

A: "Is your literary agent as big a louse as mine? What do they do for their 10 per cent?"

B: "My publisher is a robber."

C: "My publisher is an ignoramus."

D: "My publisher's mother once won the best-of-show award at the Westchester Kennel Club."

E: "Have you read that stinking novel by Joe Doakes, 'Love Under the Neon Sign'?" How did it make the best-seller list? I could sneeze a better book than that."

No, there is nothing more disillusioning than the conversation of authors.

Actors are but little better. All the world's a stage to them, and in restaurants they have a bad habit of ordering catsup like it was rare old Napoleon brandy.

Financier could be fun, if they'd relax and really tell you what's going on in the money market. But they don't—probably because they don't know themselves. Weather forecasters, I find, are pretty much like old sailors—after the third hot air mass filters through the conversation you can't believe a word they say.

Generals are full of medals and quaint military lore. But in discussing their campaigns they identify their armies with themselves. They say, "he (the enemy) hit me in my flank, and hurt me a little, but I cut him up and went on." Privates and corporals never talk that way.

Diplomats are amusing, the only class that can "good morning" with an air of international mystery. But their small talk is always about big matters.

Businessmen? After you say "how's business?" what else is there to do but lean back and give a big listen? Farmers? The same thing. You inquire, "how are crops?" Then you give another big listen. Business and crop are always bad. If taxes aren't ruining one, the boll weevil is eating up the other.

Barbers and waiters talk at you instead of to you. They just flatter you—or ignore you.

Women are like generals and financiers. They want to discuss their big operations. But at least they don't hesitate to give you the real inside story.

Doctors, lawyers, undertakers, bartenders—they all meet the public but few will tell the secrets of their trade. Their shop talk is for themselves alone.

Who then are the most interesting conversationalists? To me they are children, photographers, musicians, and wild animal trainers.

They are always fresh and new, they are never dull or stale. And they will talk about anything.

Gripe About UN and Telephones

By George E. Sokolsky

We all ought to like the telephone company because it has given us the best service in the world, but when it sets up a system for giving telephones to UN officials, clerks and stenographers because they are attached to a government, and deprives American citizens of their telephones, then the story ought to be told.

During the war, the War Production Board set up a system of distributing telephones on a basis of priorities. There was a shortage of switchboards and instruments and wires and the War Production Board decided who was in essential work and had to have a telephone. Whether their decision was reasonable and equitable is a matter of opinion and may some day be discussed with more facts than are now available. When the war was over the War Production Board went out of existence, the priorities did as well.

But the telephone company was still short of supplies, so they set up their own system of priorities as follows:

(A) Official army, navy, marine corps and coast guard units and veterans administration.

(B) Official federal, state, country and municipal government services.

(C) Official agencies of foreign governments.

The United Nations comes under class (C), not only for itself but for its officials and personnel in their homes as well. Who decides whether the person is entitled to a telephone? The secretary—general of the United Nations, of course. He passed on it. The United Nations housing division takes care of the business.

Now, the United Nations will eventually be situated on Manhattan Island in the city of New York where it is erecting a building that looks like a tombstone. But temporarily it is at Lake Success, outside of Great Neck. A large number of its personnel live in Queens and Nassau counties, where there have been housing developments, particularly for veterans.

So what happens to telephones? The area has been declared a critical one. In one village, the telephone company had in June, 4,900 unfilled orders due to shortage of central office facilities. In a letter to an applicant an official of the New York state public service commission writes: "If these central office facilities were available at the moment, it would result in a condition where some 2,000 applicants would not receive service because of cable congestion. Relief is under way in this area and is expected to be available in November. This will give the company some 5,500 stations that they can use. However, all people from category 5 through category 9 will probably be delayed until the spring of 1950. Unfortunately, your application is in category 9 and unless a greater number of disconnects materialize than is expected, service will not be available for you until spring."

What puts this applicant in category 9 to wait another year for a telephone? The fact, of course, that UN personnel, passed by the United Nations housing division and the secretary-general, come first.

There is no law that sets up these categories. There is no federal law and no state law. There is no law that says that a UN official is entitled to a telephone ahead of an American citizen. There is no treaty between the United Nations which puts an alien ahead of an American.

It is what might be called courtesy, but is the American citizen not entitled to courtesy as well? It is like the automobile plates which the New York police give all sorts of United Nations personnel. The plate reads "UN" (numerals). When a policeman sees that plate, does he know whether the individual driving the car is on the blue list, which grants full immunity under extra-territoriality, or on the white list, which provides limited immunity? What questions must the policeman ask when he catches the UN license plate in a traffic infraction—like knocking down a woman in Great Neck?

The point of the matter is that UN needs none of these privileges. It can move along as the rest of us do. If it were situated anywhere else in the world, all the privileges its people want and claim would not give them as favorable conditions as are ordinarily provided here.

Diet and Health Pouches Are Caused By Weak Intestines

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WEAKENING of the muscular wall of the intestine results in the formation of bulges or pouches at the points of greatest strain. Known technically as diverticula, they cause a disorder which goes by the name of diverticulosis.

In most cases, the patient will be unaware of the condition because it causes no unpleasant symptoms. In one out of six or seven cases, however, inflammation develops, giving rise to the disorder known as diverticulitis. In these instances the severity of the symptoms depends on the degree of the inflammation, but the most usual discomforts are pain in the left, lower part of the abdomen, slight fever, excessive gas formation, alternate constipation and diarrhea, plus sickness at the stomach. Laboratory tests will reveal an increased number of white cells in the blood.

Make a Diagnosis

In order to make a diagnosis, some mixture containing barium is injected into the lower bowel and an X-ray plate taken.

The treatment of diverticulosis, as well as diverticulitis, includes giving a bland, non-irritating diet. Such a diet is free from bulky and highly-seasoned foods. Stringy vegetables and fruits containing seeds are avoided. If constipation develops, liberal amounts of fruit juices may be employed.

Complications may require surgical treatment. These complications include abscess formation, rupture of the bowel, or blocking of the opening through the bowel.

Surgical Treatment

One form of surgical treatment for complications consists in making an opening from the bowel through the abdominal wall above the point where the diverticula are located. Then the affected part of the bowel is washed or irrigated daily, and such substances as the sulfonamide drugs are administered by mouth. When the patient becomes free of symptoms, the opening in the bowel can be closed.

If symptoms recur, an operation for the removal of the affected portion of the bowel is often necessary. If a rupture of the bowel occurs, immediate operation is essential.

Diverticulitis can occur in young persons, but in most cases it develops in those who are more than 50 years of age. In each case, the patient must be carefully studied to determine what type of treatment may be best.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. L. C. M.: I have a friend who has a lump in her throat from time to time. She also has headaches and perspires quite a bit. What could cause this trouble?

Answer: It is possible that the trouble is due to some nerve disorder. On the other hand, a toxic goiter may cause similar symptoms. She is in need of thorough study to tell what disorder is present so that proper treatment may be carried out.

Subversive Label Is Upheld by Court

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(P)—

The U. S. court of appeals today upheld the government's right to label certain groups as "subversive."

The 2-to-1 decision was handed down in the case of the joint anti-Fascist refugee committee which had appealed to the courts after it was included on Attorney General Clark's "subversive list" two years ago.

The appeals court affirmed the U. S. district court here in dismissing the refugee committee's suit on a motion by the government.

Divorce Is Sought By Ginger Rogers

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12—(P)—Virginia Catherine McMath Culpepper Ayres Briggs—Ginger Rogers, for short—wants a divorce.

She's been doing some "grievous mental suffering" lately, the 37-year-old actress said in a complaint yesterday, all on account of her third husband, Jack Briggs.

When they were married in 1943, she exulted: "He's everything I've ever dreamed of."

A property settlement was reached out of court. They have no children. She asks no alimony. Ginger divorced Lew Ayres in 1940 and vaudeville E. J. Culpepper in 1931.

Murder of Girl Admitted by Youth

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 12—

(P)—A sorrow-faced young man led police today to the body of a 15-year-old girl who had been beaten, stabbed and hidden under a log pile near a Portland bridge.

Detectives Noel Eck and Sgt. up on another charge, voluntarily Dan Mitola said the man, picked blurted out the story of a brutal slaying that police had never suspected.

They said a 22-year-old man with a long criminal record admitted killing the girl after she refused his advances, because "she was a good girl and would make trouble with the police."

West Germany Gets Ready for New Republic

New State Set Up By Merger of Three Allied Sectors

By BRACK CURRY
FRANKFURT, Germany, Aug. 12—(AP)—Western Germans will decide next Sunday (Aug. 14) whether a one-armed, one-legged victim of Hitler's torture chambers or a scholarly, aloof lawyer will be the most powerful figure in the new German Federal Republic.

On that day the western Germans will elect their first central government since Hitler. It will be their first free election on a national scale in 17 years.

The election will set up a new European state uniting the American, British and French occupation zones with a population of more than 45,000,000 Germans west of the Elbe.

And it will make one of these two men the biggest figure in the new republic.

Dr. Kurt Schumacher, 54-year-old leader of the Social Democratic party. The Social Democrats are left-wing Socialists.

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, 73-year-old head of the Christian Democratic Union. This is a conservative party favoring private enterprise.

Schumacher, the Socialist leader, lost a leg in the first world war. He languished in Nazi concentration camps for 11 years. Nazi torturers mangled one of his arms. He later lost it. But he has lost none of his fiery, crusading spirit.

Adenauer is a politician with a professor's mannerisms. His high cheek bones and Sphinx-like expression make him resemble a proud American Indian chief. He, too, was tossed behind bars by the Nazis—on three occasions.

Both Adenauer and Schumacher are mentioned as possible choices for the first president of the fledgling republic. The president will be named after the election by the Bundestag (lower House of Parliament) and the 11 west German states. But their power flows from their positions of leadership in western Germany's two big parties.

Schumacher and Adenauer are among some 1,000 candidates vying for 400 seats in the Bundestag. The party controlling the Bundestag will name the chancellor (prime minister). It will determine government policy, as the ruling party does in Britain's House of Commons.

And the man who controls the dominant party will be the key figure in German public life.

Schumacher and Adenauer are opposites—politically and personally.

Schumacher's Social Democrats want the government to take over big industries, banks and insurance companies. Adenauer's Christian Democrats call for promotion of private enterprise and protection of private property.

Before an audience and often in private talks, Schumacher shouts like a drill sergeant, contorting his gaunt, expressive face. His eyes blaze. He is a stirring orator.

Adenauer seldom shucks his reserve. At party rallies he speaks slowly and quietly, like a classroom professor lecturing on philosophy. But many people listen. They like his logic.

Schumacher has made plain that he regards the election as a straight contest between the social welfare state and private enterprise. What this means is: Will western Germany follow the course of Britain's labor government?

Aside from this issue, the campaign pivots on every-day problems—high living costs, adequate housing, rising unemployment.

The Germans will vote primarily for parties and promises, not for candidates. Ballots bear only the names of political parties, not the names of individual candidates. Voters can vote straight party ticket.

Anti-Recession Weapons Ready

Credit Arranged By Reserve Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said today it is well armed to combat a recession—if it need be.

Its 35th annual report to Congress declared "the federal reserve system is much better equipped than ever before to meet the credit needs of the economy in a period of downward adjustment."

Anti-recession weapons were ticked off:

1. "Virtually unlimited means of supplying the money market with additional reserves, if the situation should call for such action."

2. Possession of sufficient gold certificate reserves—about $23,000,000,000—by the federal reserve (central) banks to enable them to "more than double" paper money notes and loans to member banks.

3. Legal authority for the reserve banks to "lend to member banks on any assets considered to be acceptable as security for advances."

4. Further legal authority for the reserve banks to make loans for working capital purposes to business and industry when other credit is unavailable."

The board, however, repeated the complaint it made during the boom that preceded last fall: the federal reserve system "lacks adequate means of coping with a recurrence of strong inflationary pressures."

Report Jet Planes Flying Blind Here

In addition to the fast flying jet planes which have been racing back and forth over the city at several hundred miles an hour, two new jets, without the tanks on the wing tips such as carried by the smaller planes, were reported flying "blind" over the city Thursday.

The new planes are much larger than the ones which have been flashing over the county east and west for weeks, and fly at much less speed, and with less noise. Both of the larger jets had red noses and tails, warning other pilots that they were flying by instruments alone, according to former airmen in the world war.

City Manager W. W. Hill recently filed a protest against the jet planes flashing over the city, and the commander of the Clinton Air Base reported that the planes would be withdrawn this week.

The commander said they were making test flights, and these flights have caused many citizens to become jittery over the dashing planes.

Picnic Precedes
Class Meeting

A picnic on Thursday evening at the Johnson's Crossing Roadside Park preceded the regular August meeting of the Friendship Circle Class of the Sugar Grove Church at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elden Armbrust. Well filled baskets of delicious viands made up the tempting supper, before assembling at the Armbrust home for the business session presided over by the president, Mr. Elden Armbrust.

The opening hymn was, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and was followed with prayer by Rev. Harry Kiefer, and the hymns, "In The Garden" and "Bringing In The Sheaves." Roll call was responded to by 12 members, each naming the position they ever held. The usual reports were heard and approved and an ice cream social was planned to be held in conjunction with the Sunshine Class on August 19 and a member of each class was appointed to serve on the committee for the arrangements. Those from the Friendship Class include Mrs. Osman King and Mr. Paul Brunner. Ice cream and dishes, Mrs. Damon Merritt, soliciting, Mrs. Paul Brunner, soft drinks, Mrs. Elden Armbrust.

The meeting was adjourned with the singing of the hymn, "Have Thine Own Way, Lord," and prayer by Rev. Kiefer. Three members of the Sunshine Class who were included as guests were Misses Joy Cockerill, Barbara Barger and Joan Cockerill. Informal visiting was enjoyed the remainder of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Chrisman will be host and hostess for the September meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Jensen left Wednesday for their home in Oakland, California. While here, they were guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Garringer and family of Jeffersonville.

Miss Gullick
Is Honor Guest
At Picnic

Miss Nita Gullick who was a member of the teaching staff at Eastside School the past school term as an exchange teacher from Nottingham, England, was the honor guest on Wednesday evening when Mrs. Ruth Hanna Hopkins, entertained with a delightful picnic supper and included as guests other teachers at the school. The tempting viands which were served on the lawn and a delightful supper hour was enjoyed. During the evening the group enjoyed visiting with the popular honor guest who leaves Tuesday for New York City where she will sail on the Queen Mary Thursday to return to her home. Each guest also gave interesting talks on their summer vacation trips and snapshots of scenes they visited created much interest. Mrs. Mary Gillispie of Athens, the only teacher unable to be present communicated by phone and spoke to each guest, which added to the pleasures of the evening. Those present were: Mrs. Dorothy Stanforth, Mrs. Dorothy Crone, Mrs. Ruth Barker, Mrs. Mary Crone, and Miss Priscilla White.

Garden Club
Members Guests
Of Miss Zimmerman

Members of the Washington Garden Club were hospitably entertained on Thursday afternoon by Miss Clara Zimmerman, who invited them to her home on the Prairie Road to see the display of various kinds of both cultivated and wild grasses. She identified each variety and told her guests where they might be found. Arrangements of the grasses, artistically used to the best advantage were admired by the group and Miss Zimmerman explained how the natural color could be retained by careful processing and also told them that now is the time to collect them for winter use. Following her interesting illustrated talk, tempting refreshments were served the eight members included who were, Mrs. Ray Bowers, Mrs. T. N. Willis, Mrs. Don Collins, Mrs. Ray Johnson, Mrs. Darrell Williams, Mrs. William Melvin, Mrs. Eliza Woodruff and Mrs. Earl Horney.

When fresh tomatoes are plentiful stew some of them to serve along with meat or fish. Remove the skins first by immersing them in hot water, then quarter them and simmer in a deep skillet (without water) until they are quite soft. Season them with butter or margarine, salt, freshly-ground pepper. If desired celery salt and a dash of all-spice also may be added as well as a little sugar.

Slice a banana lengthwise and then arrange the flat thin slices fanshape over salad greens for an attractive salad. Add almost any other fruit in season—melon, berries, peaches—and serve with sour cream dressing.

Miss Bidwell
Entertains At Dessert Bridge

Miss Carolyn Lou Bidwell entertained with a dessert bridge on Thursday evening and included a small group of close friends as guests and summer flowers were used as decoration throughout the home, for the occasion. At the close of the progressive game the hostess presented the award to Miss Cynthia Gage who was the holder of high score. A tempting dessert course was served at two small tables centered with arrangements of summer flowers. Included as guests were Misses Cynthia Gage, Cindy Harper, Nancy Hewitt, Peggy Miller, Melcha Thomas, Arden Hill and Mrs. James Garringer.

Ladies Aid
Annual Picnic
Held Thursday

About 25 members of the Elmwood Ladies Aid and their families assembled at the Washington Park on Thursday evening for the annual picnic. Long tables in the shelter house, beautifully decorated with summer flowers from the garden of Mrs. J. F. Wilson seated the group for the sumptuous meal made up of a wide variety of tempting viands. The business session was dispensed with and the remainder of the evening was spent in games and informal visiting. The flowers on the tables were later taken by Mrs. Wilson to Mrs. Harley Stackhouse, a member who was unable to be present. Guests included were Miss Faye Wilson and Bobbie Stackhouse. Mrs. Earl Scott, vice president of the society, was in charge of the arrangements for the event.

Mrs. William Irvine and son Earl left Friday for their home in Cleveland after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Reser.

Class Picnic
Held At Hays Home

Members of the Gleaners Class of McNair Church assembled on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Roy Hays on the Snowhill Road for the annual class picnic.

One long table on the lawn was decorated with an arrangement of beautiful summer flowers and seated the members and their husbands who were included as guests for a most congenial supper hour.

Later a short business session was conducted indoors by the president, Mrs. Clarence Campbell, who also led in the impressive devotional period. Scripture reading was taken from the 128th Psalm, followed by prayer by Mrs. Bessie Sanders. The usual reports were heard and approved and tentative plans were made for Rev. Washington C. H. Customers Among First for Goodyear Co.

It's hard to comprehend the growth of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. from a little concern whose principal business was carriage and bicycle tires into a vast industrial empire that virtually covers the world in the short span of 50 years.

And, what's more, among the budding company's first customers were three in Washington C. H.

Almost at the top of the list in the company's musty old "Ledger No. 1" was the name of Charles Allen. The date was March 22, 1899—just a couple of months after the Goodyear Co. came into being.

A little further on in the old ledger, two other Washington C. H. customers were listed. One was C. F. Ballard and the other George B. Swope.

These pages of time were turned back by a native of Washington C. H. who is now—and has been for years—one of the key-stones of the Goodyear Co. public relations department. The names of the fellow townsmen were uncovered by Hugh Allen just by happenstance when he had occasion to check up some early sales information, presumably for the history of the Goodyear Co. he has been writing.

He told of his discoveries in the ledger which he admitted were a surprise to him, in a letter to his brother, Howard C. Allen, here.

Carriage Tires

In this letter, Allen said he could not tell from the ledger what the transactions were but, he added, "they probably were for carriage or bicycle tires which were our (Goodyear) main bread and butter item at that time."

While Charles Allen, who died several years ago, is better remembered as a fancier of fine horses, particularly harness race horses, he was in the hardware business here for a time. He also had extensive farming interests. If it was carriage or bicycle tires that he bought from the young Goodyear Co. 50 years ago, they probably were for his retail business.

Hugh Allen, incidentally, is a nephew of the late Charles Allen. That was probably why the name caught his eye when he was looking through the old ledger.

Charles Ballard, like Charles Allen, was in the hardware business here many years ago before his death. In those days, hardware stores were closely akin to the country general store in that they carried a great assortment of merchandise, including carriages, buggies, bicycles and tires for them.

The Ballard store was on South Main Street and was one of the biggest of its kind in the community in its heyday.

Handmade Automobile

George B. Swope was a machinist, a mechanical genius, who had a little machine shop first on South Main Street just across the Pennsylvania Railroad and later on East Street in the building remodeled for the Sunshine Laundry.

Long before the automobile came into common use, George Swope made one by hand in his own shop. It was a crude contraption compared to the streamlined cars of today, but he drove it around town and its immediate environs for years, much to the consternation of the drivers of horses which had not yet become accustomed to cars.

Like other machine shops of that day, the Swope shop took care of the buggy and bicycle needs and it is probably, Allen wrote, that he too bought some of the first Goodyear tires for them.

Time Makes Changes

Bicycle tires are still a Goodyear product, but the slim, snake-like, solid rubber, carriage tires are almost a curiosity in the Goodyear line until several years ago, Allen wrote, but were sold largely in the south and Orient. Those that went to the Far East were for the rickshaw, the common man-drawn method of transportation in China and Japan. The last of the carriage tire machinery in the Goodyear Co. plant in Akron was shipped to Java when a factory was put up there in 1934, the letter said.

Pipelineers Face Farmer Blocking Path With Truck

Pipelineers, who reportedly left their fences down too long, found their way blocked Wednesday by the truck of an irate tenant farmer.

It seems that the pipelineers, moving across fields at "Seabee" speed let a few too many hogs slip through the wire.

That let Donald Hopkins' hogs get into a nearby cornfield and prowl around to get mixed up with a neighbor's hogs. Hopkins said, explaining why he took the matter in his own hands.

A gang of pipelineers found one of Hopkins' trucks blocking their path. Their pipeline boss promised to make his gang watch their fences a little more closely and the matter was settled at least temporarily.

Hopkins says some of the other neighbors have complained about their livestock getting out of their fields owing to the crews moving through their fences.

The main body of the Associated Pipeline Contractors' workers is just north of Bloomingburg and are moving eastward toward Lebanon.

Riegel To Live Here And Run Businesses

O. M. Riegel, who had been the vocational coordinator at the high school here since 1936, is not going to leave Washington C. H. although he is no longer connected with the school.

Riegel disclosed this himself after "the telephone has been nearly rung off the wall" by people wanting to rent the house in Millwood where the Riegel family lives.

Now that he is relieved of his responsibilities at the high school, Riegel said he expects to devote all of his time to his outboard motor sales and service business (he has the Johnson Outboard Motor Co. agency) here and his Hocking Valley Trade School at Nelsonville.

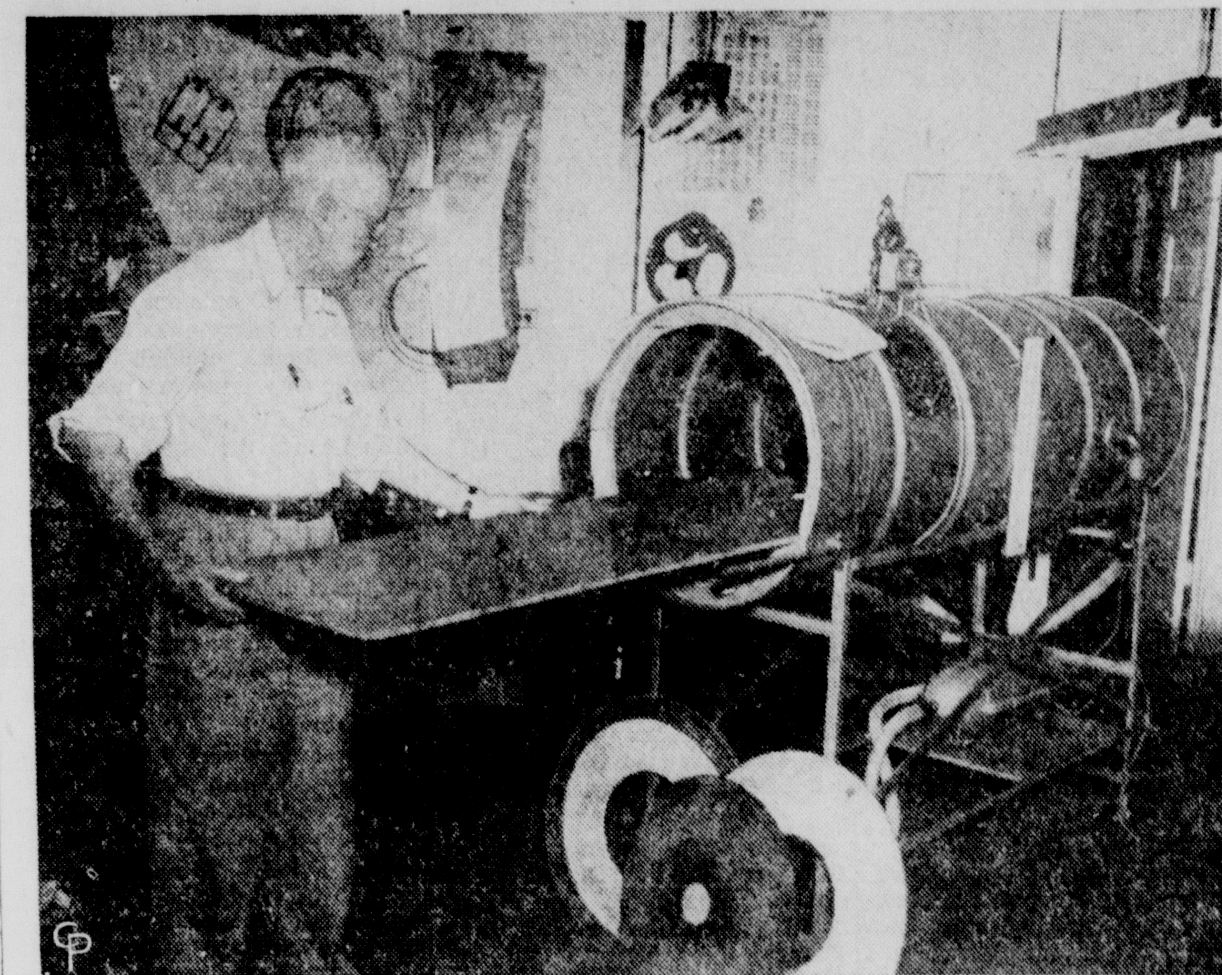

While still living here, Riegel said he planned to drive back and forth to Nelsonville, making the 160-mile round trip several times a week.

He explained that he does not personally teach at the trade school, merely supervises and gives its operations. Courses are given in welding, auto mechanics, body repair and Diesel engine work at the school.

HOME-MADE IRON LUNGS

Hospital Head, Popcorn Machine Manufacturer
Co-Operate as Polio Strikes Mid-West City

HOME-MADE IRON LUNG—Jack Reichart demonstrates bed with steel barrels of his quickly-built iron lung.

By CHARLES W. WHITE
Central Press Correspondent

MUNCIE, Ind.—Every community has its gadgeteering inventor, but one such mechanical wizard became the hero of this region recently.

He is Jack Reichart, 68, a popcorn and barbecue machine manufacturer who, when a local hospital told him they were in desperate need of an iron lung for anti-polio treatment, came up with a workable machine in 10 hours.

Made from two steel alcohol barrels, a vacuum sweeper, plywood, a motor from one of his barbecue machines, understructure contributed by a bedspring manufacturer, a shaft made by an outboard motor concern and other parts from many other contributors, the Reichart home-made "lung" worked.

Little Rue Steele, 8-year-old son of a bus driver, was placed in the makeshift iron lung. He showed improvement within a week. Since then, Reichart has completed three more iron lungs, adding improvements as he went along, and is preparing to put together five more.

The hospital had only one standard machine, which cost about $2,500, at the time Miss Uellie Brown, superintendent, called on Reichart for help. His first machine, he says, cost about $200, but was given free as were those which followed.

Workers in his small plant have volunteered lunch and overtime hours, laboring night and day to help during an infantile paralysis outbreak which now has 28 patients in Ball Memorial hospital, Muncie, with 22 diagnosed as positive.

Hospital facilities became overloaded when, besides patients from its own community, it took sufferers from three adjoining counties where polio equipment was not available.

"I never saw an iron lung before until I went out to the hospital to see one Monday," the amiable, white-haired inventor said.

HE GOT considerable help through foresight of Miss Brown, the hospital superintendent. She had saved a pamphlet and magazine article telling how emergency lungs were built in 1940 at Marquette, Mich., during a polio epidemic by M. K. Reynolds, a technical engineer.

When Miss Brown called Reichart he said he'd do anything, he could, and asked to see the material she had. "It was her idea, her plan," he points out. "I simply co-ordinated the effort."

His small factory, in which electric equipment was made for B-29s during the war, became an assembly plant for iron lungs here. During the first hours, sponge rubber mats for the machine were flown from Lafayette, Ind.

Plywood was donated by a lumber company, hardware parts by local stores. A vacuum sweeper was also donated. Steel alcohol barrels, provided by a silver plate company, are welded together at the Reichart plant. Half a dozen other local shops and factories are contributing work, material and brains where they can—all free of charge.

Reichart points out that this is not the first time a community has prepared iron lung equipment. Others have done it before.

"We've had the experience now, though, and I think we can not only improve on the machines, but can help other towns when they get in trouble," he said.

When the second iron lung was delivered to the hospital, Reichart had added a rectangular glass window at suggestion of hospital officials. Two sponge-rubber arm-holes also were added so that doctors could reach the patient with both hands from either side of the lung.

Reichart has enlisted aid of Sylvan Ketterman, Muncie organ manufacturer, to make better bellows for his future iron lungs. He has improved air-regulator controls so that air is pumped in and out of the machine, instead of only out as was the case when only the vacuum-sweeper device was used.

Reichart plans to prepare blueprints and instructions which can be airmailed to any hospital which is faced with a similar emergency.

Pike County Added To Icenhower List

Assistant State Fire Marshal, William Icenhower, former sheriff of Fayette County for many years, has had another county added to his territory, making seven counties in all in district 8, in which he works.

For sometime he has had Fayette,

Madison, Pickaway, Ross, Fairfield and Clark counties in his territory, and recently Pike County was added.

The district was increased to seven counties in a move to reduce costs of the department, when five assistant deputies and two clerks were dropped from the department.

Deputy Icenhower makes frequent inspection trips to the various centers of population in the district, and also investigates where there is reason to believe a fire was of incendiary origin.

New Pumper Has First Run Since Arrival

Fire in Brandenburg
Garage Extinguished
By Workmen

The city's new super-pumper had its first run since it was placed in the city building here May 26, when a call was received from the Brandenburg Garage on Clinton Avenue at 3 P. M. Thursday.

The big pumper and the regular pumper (No. 2) responded when an alarm came from the big garage but neither piece of equipment was used after reaching the garage.

The fire had started when fumes from a lacquer thinner ignited in the mouth of a drain in the floor, while a car was standing over the drain.

However workmen seized a number of hand extinguishers and extinguished the fire within a brief space of time, so that there was little or no damage.

The old pumper was first to respond to the alarm, and two minutes later the big pumper also was on its way, the policy regarding use of the new pumper being to use it only in the business area or other places of business in the city, wherever a fire occurs.

On the way back to the fire department quarters, Fire Chief George Hall halted the new pumper in front of the Arlington Hotel block, extended the 65 foot ladder until it reached above the top of the hotel, and then he climbed to the roof of the hotel.

The practice demonstration attracted much attention as the Arlington or Fayette Hotel is one of the highest buildings in the city, and using the ladder to reach the roof or top floor for carrying water lines up or rescuing persons from the top floor was fully realized by the onlookers.

Ohio All-Stars Pick Colleges

OSU To Get Most; Some Out of State

By FRITZ HOWELL
MASSILLON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Ohio football's fabulous 50—members of the North and South All-Star high school squads which clash here tomorrow—will scatter to a score of colleges this fall.

And not all the coveted talent will remain near home. Ten of the highly touted kids are definitely headed for out-of-state schools and several others are tinkering with the idea of moving over the border.

Of the 41 who have chosen their future Alma Mater, Ohio State and Cincinnati have definite commitments from nine. Two others are wavering between the Bearcat school and other colleges, while three are still considering Ohio State.

Out of state schools successful in getting boys from the "happy hunting grounds"—the all star squads—are Cornell, Princeton, Michigan, Iowa State, Columbia, Northwestern, Southern California, Syracuse, Purdue, Colgate, Harvard and Eastern Kentucky.

Here's how the boys said they were lined up for this fall:

Undecided: end Larry Gatrell, Newark; tackle Jim Barlock, Dover; halfback Babe Calhoun, Middletown; end Dick Delaney, Akron; guard George Antoine, Toledo; guard Bob Beach, Youngstown; center Tom Mahin, Youngstown; halfback Al Brown, Massillon; guard and tackle Dave Stacy, Steubenville.

OHIO STATE: Tackle Dick Olsea Lorain; tackle Mike Takacs, Massillon; fullback Chet Brob, Lakewood; fullback John H. Lay, Niles; end Bob Brimes, Middletown; tackle Jim Gross, Middletown; tackle Steve Morates, Steubenville; and fullback Bob Kopeck, Dayton.

CINCINNATI: Guard Don Grammer, Dayton; guard Don Thomas, Springfield; guard Charles Weeks, Columbus; center Bob Kane, Newark; center Glenn Sample, Cincinnati and halfback Paul Theisen, Columbus.

MIAMI: Tackle Bob Boylan, Canton; guard Bill Combs, Middletown; fullback Jim (Boxcar) Bailey, Hamilton and halfback Jim Fritz, New Philadelphia.

KENT STATE: Tackle Leroy Harouvis, Lakewood and quarterback Paul Ferguson, Mansfield.

HEIDELBERG: Quarterback, Paul Yackey, Dover.

MICHIGAN: Tackle Nick O'Brovac, Canton and quarterback Mark Scarr, Barborton.

OHIO U: Center James Gessels, Chillicothe.

CORNELL: End Todd Kolb, Shaker Heights.

PRINCETON: End Frank McPhee, Youngstown.

IOWA STATE: Center Bill Armstrong, Lakewood.

COLUMBIA: Center, Dave Beuschen, Toledo.

HARVARD: End, Bob Stargel, Cincinnati.

EASTERN KENTUCKY: Quarterback Carl White, Ironton.

Still trying to make up their minds are:

End Ora Day, Hamilton (Ohio State or Cincinnati); halfback Jack Gordon, Hamilton (Ohio State or Cincinnati); guard Leo Longville, Akron (John Carroll or Akron); quarterback, Bob Burson, Lakewood (Northwestern or Southern California); and halfback Bernie Skvarka, Struthers (Ohio State, Purdue or Colgate).

Johnny Colcler of Canton McKinley, the states No. 1 halfback of 1948, and member of the Ohio and National All-Star high school teams, is wavering between Syracuse and Southern California. He scored 128 points last year.

Halfback Jack Decker of Kenton is married and plans to pass up college—unless one of the many college coaches at the annual clinic now in progress helps him change his mind.

Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho have 20 percent of U.S. hydroelectric power and half the estimated undeveloped potential.

Detroit Lion Squad Cut

YPSILANTI, Mich., Aug. 12—(AP)—The axe struck heavily today in the Detroit Lions professional football camp as Coach Bo McMillin released six recruit players from the squad roster.

Among those cut adrift were tackle Joe Demando, 25, of Massillon, Ohio, formerly of Baldwin-Wallace College; and fullback Richard Boykin, of Ironton, Ohio.

Mercury Drops Following Rain

Cooler Weather On Way to Ohio

Following a peak temperature of 95 degrees Thursday, when humidity made the heat feel many degrees higher, rainfall of 40 of an inch occurred here and much of the county was subjected to heavy showers early in the night. As a result the mercury dropped suddenly and the cooling breezes made the night more bearable, although 67 was the low point registered during the night.

However Friday morning at 8 o'clock the mercury stood at 75 degrees or five degrees lower than at the same hour Thursday morning and the forecast was for a definite break in the heat wave by Saturday morning.

The heavy rainfall came at a time when badly needed to insure development of the corn and soybean crops and a large part of the county shared in the series of thunderstorms.

Temperature here Friday was not expected to reach the 90 mark and Saturday's range is expected to be from around 65 to 85, the weather observer forecasts.

Relief from the heat is on the way from the northwest. Additional rainfall was forecast for Friday afternoon.

Vanguard of Census Takers Starts Trial Run for 1950's Big Count

BIG JOB—Census taker Lawrence Goeckel hit the "jack pot" in 1940 when he enumerated 16 members of Buss family in Chicago. Still another son, Dan, wasn't home when Goeckel arrived for nose count.

By JOHN F. SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

CHICAGO — Several hundred carefully trained census takers are pounding the pavements here and ringing doorbells in a full dress rehearsal of what virtually everyone in the country will experience within a year from now.

Here and in other test areas, the final touches are being put on the Bureau of the Census' big show of 1950. The counting of noses in a country's population now is so widespread that about two-thirds of the world's inhabitants are periodically enumerated, but Uncle Sam does the most thorough job of all.

Not only does the indefatigable Census bureau come up with full population data at the end of each decade, but a great stockpile of statistics also is accumulated on such matters as housing, occupations, amount of schooling, and even income.

It is a huge task, and since no self-respecting authority on the science of a census is satisfied with less than data based on face-to-face interviews, it means that at least one person in every family in the land will be visited for an average of about an hour by an interviewer who will check off answers on a big sheet of paper.

The trials here and in other test points throughout the country—such as Union county, Indiana, Cape Girardeau, Mo., and Anderson, S. C.—are held partly to discover what questions may be dropped from the final list and whether the long-form that takes an hour and ten minutes is any better than a shorter 40-minute list.

THE TEST CANVASS here involves 320 interviewers who are the vanguard of an eventual army of 165,000, each of whom will be paid from $200 to $500 for his trouble.

Many will be housewives who work a month or so out of each year gathering information in one or more of the Bureau's between-term surveys of such matters as business activity, employment, manufacturers, mines, foreign trade and agriculture.

Patience is one of the qualifications for the job, for on the average an enumerator must call back twice to find anyone at home and four trips is not unusual. If no one ever opens up, they learn what they can from the neighbors.

Since Americans travel a lot, it often is a question whether to count them where they happen to be when the census taker catches up with them, or credit them to their usual communities. Census experts call the former a de facto count, and the latter a de jure.

The United States census is technically classified as of the second type.

This sometimes makes a big difference to a small community trying to "put itself on the map" as a city, for the Bureau regards any town with 2,500 or more inhabitants as "urban." Mapmakers often rely on this in spotting localities on their charts.

Local pride in getting as many people counted as possible is credited with traditionally smoothing the path of Uncle Sam's enumerators. To allay suspicion they also count on neighborliness and the fact that usually they are well-known in their localities.

NEVERTHELESS, all of them carry impressive-looking credentials, and know the techniques for sidestepping a vicious watchdog or causing a cautious householder to widen the crack in the door enough to permit a satisfactory interview.

The trial crew here reports unusual resistance on the part of harried housewives who fear that it is a dodge to sell something.

It is a classical rule among census experts that questions must not touch on matters considered too private to discuss, especially with a government representative, but the current schedule has several such queries and the expected difficulty is being met.

One is the question on income, most of the interviewees hesitate there. The census takers usually start by asking whether it is $10,000 a year, and go down the line to a stopping point.

The other is the classical problem of getting women to confess their ages. The tactful interviewers get around this by asking "can't you give me an estimate?"

The responses indicate that the American woman seems to have discovered how to keep her youth.

The places the census takers find it hard to enter are more than counterbalanced by homes which welcome them with open arms. The interviewers are handed family albums, shown the family hobbies, and they even rate invitations to stay for dinner.

SUPERSTITIONS which make censuses difficult in some parts of the world have not spread to the United States. The history of population census is very ancient, stretching back to Babylonia, the Children of Israel in Old Testament times, and the greatest census takers prior to modern times, the Romans.

Misfortune coincidentally followed several of the census periods and it became legend among some peoples that it is bad luck to count noses. Even the British House of Lords expressed some misgivings in 1735 over authorizing a census, and as late as 1926 some tribes in the Kenya Colony of Africa rioted.

However, the United States Constitution provided for it when representation in the House of Representatives was based on population, and it has been taken as a matter of course here ever since. But not until 1880, did the census include special data such as now is gathered.

This year's list is long, but the Bureau warns it would be much longer if it yielded to demands for such data as how many blondes, brunets and redheads there are in the country and their geographic distribution, and what the dog, cat, and other pet population is.

As is, this conservatism may be appreciated by Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen when a few months hence they are likely to get pretty well interviewed even though the census taker tries to be considerate and limit his visit to less than an hour.

Miss America Shushed

Father and Atlantic City Pageant Promoters Tell Her To Bare Only Charms—Not Opinions

PARIS, Aug. 12—(AP)—Bebe Shopp, the current Miss America, has promised her papa that she will display only her charms and not her opinions in the rest of her European tour.

Papa Shopp—E. R. Shopp of Hopkins, Minn.—complained that his daughter was being misquoted by reporters on this side of the water. He cabled 18-year-old Bebe:

"Adverse quotations persist, stop giving opinions, granting newspaper interviews. Keep out of wineshops, cocktail lounges. Atlantic City is up in arms."

Atlantic City, as represented by Miss Lenora Slaughter, executive director of the Miss America Pageant, was angry indeed. Miss Slaughter said Bebe—if she did—had no "right to discuss bathing suits and fashions with anyone. It is not in good taste."

Miss Slaughter said "We will request her to return, as will her father," if Bebe's statements don't stop.

Bebe had opened her European tour with a London news conference wherein she came out against falsies and French bathing suits. Falsies are department store articles designed to put a capital B on bosom French bathing suits are nothing much at all. In Minnesota today, Father Shopp contended that "not one word printed about Bebe in United States papers during her European tour is true."

"They are the work of some Red over there," he contended.

London reporters who attended Bebe's news conference there said they had quoted her with great exactitude.

Bebe went to the naughty Follies Bergere last night. Her traveling companion, Virginia Safford of Minneapolis, said:

"Bebe was the hit of the show."

Josephine Baker (Follies star) called her up on stage and presented her with flowers, and all the Americans in the place just swarmed her afterwards, telling her how proud they were of her."

Miss Shopp was keeping her promise to Father Shopp. A reporter asked what she thought of the Follies. Replied Bebe:

"No comment."

Murder Suspect Nabbed by Police

GALLIPOLIS, Aug. 12—(AP)—Neighbors investigating screams found the body of 70-year-old Mary Holley of Gallipolis on her bed in her home last night.

Coroner Donald R. Warehime of Galion County withheld a verdict pending outcome of an autopsy. The neighbors reported a car drove away from the Holley home shortly after the screams were heard.

A 36-year-old Gallipolis man was taken into custody early today for questioning.

3-Team Race in S W O; Cubs Face Senators

Fayette County has an excellent chance of being called the home of the champion of the Southwestern Ohio League.

Its two teams, Good Hope and Washington C. H. Moose, are battling it out in a three-way clash for first place and Sunday's games promise to clear the air a bit.

The Moose are tied with Bowersville for first place, having whipped them, 9-2, last week. Good Hope is a half-game behind and will tangle with Bowersville on Sunday.

Wilson Field will be the stage for the Moose game with Frankfort at 2:30 P. M. Sunday.

The Moose beat Frankfort in their first meeting by an 8 to 4 score, and need this win badly when you consider the remainder of their schedule.

After Frankfort comes Good Hope. That's the game that took 16 innings, with the Moose winning, 7-6. After the tough Good Hope club, the Moose play Greenfield here and then finish off the season in a postponed game with Wilmington.

Kenny Dawes is scheduled to go to the mound for the Moose and, if his fastball hops as much as it did last week against Bowersville, then Frankfort is in for a rough time.

Bowersville At Good Hope

Bowersville is out to avenge the defeat which last week knocked them out of sole possession of the lead.

But Good Hope, Ohio, is a bad place to go looking for a baseball victory. You see, they have a pretty good club there, themselves.

Tom Smalley says he plans to send old reliable Alex Wackman against Bowersville. It's a pretty good choice, considering Alex is averaging 15.1 strikeouts per game and has won seven games against one loss.

Good Hope is confident when they recall they were beating Bowersville in their first meeting, 2-0, with two men on when the tilt was rained out.

A victory would give Good Hope at least a first-place tie with the showdown of the season coming against the Moose on the following.

Sunnyside Victors Over Cherry Hill

Sunnyside finally came through with an 8 to 4 win over Cherry Hill as Boggs held the losers to just three hits.

Cherry Hill was away to a 2-0 lead in the first inning but Sunnyside came back with one in the second and five in the third to assure themselves of the game.

Cullen got two of the Cherry Hill hits and Johnson got the other. Wilson and Boggs each slugged out two for the winners.

Hefty Heafner Sets Tam Pace

Favorites Skid In Open Play

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO, Aug. 12—(AP)—Clayton Heafner, 240-pound Charlotte, N. C., pro was burning up the trail to golf's biggest bonanza today with a one-stroke lead entering the second round of the Tam O'Shanter $35,200 "world" championship.

Heafner grabbed the brass ring yesterday with a sizzling six-under-par 66 for a slight edge over two other seasoned campaigners, Johnny Palmer of Baden, N. C., and Henry Ranson, the transplanted Texan now in Chicago.

Palmer and Ranson each banged 67's. In all 29 pros broke par 72 to set a terrific opening round pace in the chase for the $10,000 first prize.

So hot was the rivalry that Lloyd Mangrum's dismal 76 all but knocked him out of contention.

Another favorite, Sam Snead, runner-up to Mangrum in the all-American competition, also skidded. Sambo's regulation par 72 left him stranded in a tie for 30th place.

Four players were grouped at 68 in the tightly-packed start of the 72-hole scramble for golf's largest jackpot. They were Jim Ferrier, Ed Fergol, Jim Turnesa, and Dick Metz.

In the three other sections of Promoter George May's golf jubilee, the leaders stacked up this way:

Women's amateur—19-year-old Alice Bauer of Los Angeles with even par 76, and Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., Marlene Bauer, Alice's 15-year-old sister, and Grace Lenzyk, the National Amateur Champion from Hartford, Conn., all with 78's.

Women's professional—Patty Berg and Bebe Zaharias with 74 apiece, and Louise Suggs with 80.

Men's amateur—Frank Kovack of Waukegan, Ill., with 70 and Walter Cisco of Louisville, Ky., with 71. Defending "world" Amateur Champion Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., ballooned to 76 while Frank Stranahan, winner of the all-American Amateur honors Tuesday, soared to 78.

Games Halted By Rain - Big Crowd Is Out

Rain halted Thursday night's softball double feature almost before it got started and prevented the presentation of trophies to the Knothole League champions.

The washed-out games may not be played, but the trophies will be presented, probably between the games of Friday (tonight) night's twin bill if the Weatherman will cooperate.

Play-off postponed games may be a little difficult to work into the short time remaining in the season. Priority is to be given any postponed games that have a bearing on the championship race.

Trophies were to have been awarded to the batting champions of the junior and senior Knotholes Leagues and to the Cherry Hill Cardinals, the team champion. Recreation Director Fred Pierson and Carroll Steele, a recreation staff supervisor and coach of the league teams, were to have presented the awards.

A crowd was still pouring through the gate when the rain started. The fans even refused to be scared away by the thunder and lightning.

The Heinz and Lawson Legion teams got three innings played before the clouds opened up with a drencher. The Sabina Merchants and Universals did not even get to warm up.

Friday night's double feature will bring together girls teams from Washington C. H. and Xenia in the opener. The main go is to be between the X-town Sportsmen from Xenia and the Lawson Legion outfit.

Changes in Red Lineup Planned in Desperation

By JACK HAND
(By the Associated Press)
Bucky's done it before and he'll probably do it again. He's going to make some changes in the Cincinnati Reds' starting lineup in an effort to shake his seventh-placers out of a five-game losing streak.

There's not much else Manager Bucky Walters can do but shuffle his lineup. That's all he has to work with. But previous shufflings haven't produced any outstanding results.

The new lineup, which Bucky declined to announce immediately, will take the field Saturday against the cellar-dwelling Cubs at Chicago. The teams will meet in a twin bill Sunday.

The Redlegs, who have been kicked from pillar to post by the pennant-driving St. Louis Cardinals and the Brooklyn Dodgers recently, are three games in front of the hapless Cubs. Some Cincinnati fans are saying the only reason the Reds are not in last place is that the Cubs keep losing.

Indians Beat Chisox

The Cleveland Indians have hit upon a sure-fire pennant formula—extra inning games. The only trouble is they can't get the opposing teams to go along with them as often as they would like.

The Tribe is in second place today, four and a half games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees, but they're easily the overtime champions.

Including last night's 12-inning marathon with the Chicago White Sox, the Indians have played 14 games that went beyond the ninth inning this season. They've won 13 of them. They copped last night's by 6-5.

On the other hand, the Yankees own the poorest overtime record in the league—only three victories in 11 such games. No club is even close to the Indians.

Boxed Edge Yankees

The Red Sox helped tighten the race by knocking off the Yankees, 7-6, in regulation nine innings. A single by Bobby Doerr in the last half of the sixth scored Ted Williams from second, broke up a 6-6 deadlock, and cut New York's margin over the third place Sox to five and a half games.

Williams hammered his 29th home run and added a couple of singles besides a base on balls.

Joe Dimaggio accounted for the first three Yankee runs with a home run over the left field screen, with two mates aboard.

Cleveland Manager Lou Boudreau used 20 players and six pitchers to down the Sox. After overcoming a 5-3 deficit with two runs in the eighth, the Indians won in the 12th when Chicago second baseman Cass Michaels threw wildly to first in an attempt to complete a double play.

Johnny Berardino scored from second on the error. Bob Feller, last of six Cleveland hurlers, was awarded the victory, his 11th and fifth straight.

Dodgers Take Lead

Brooklyn broke a four-day deadlock for first place in the National League with St. Louis, by outslugging the Philadelphia Phils, 10-7. The victory put the Dodgers a half game up on the Cardinals, who were idle.

A home run by Pee Wee Reese with two mates aboard in the top of the eighth, snapped a 7-7 tie. A pair of four baggers by catcher Andy Seminick had kept the Phils in the game up to then.

Pittsburgh defeated the Chicago Cubs, 3-2, in the rubber tilt of their three-game series. A single by Stan Rojek followed by Johnny Hopp's triple and Ralph Kiner's fly gave the Bucs two runs in the eighth.

The New York Giants and Boston Braves had to settle for a 7-7 tie when rain halted proceedings in the last half of the eighth.

Adrian Zabala, Giant pitcher, took sick during the fifth inning and was taken to a hospital. It was learned he was pitching with a fever of 101.

All other teams enjoyed a day off.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR
"DID WE keep you waiting?" Kit asked, bending to kiss Fanny over the barrier of the long paste-board box she carried.

His eyes on the box, Marvell came to Kit's side and whispered under cover of the party's enthusiasm, "What's this?"

"Why not a horse-shoe wreath with a motto?" Marvell was conscious of the rebuke in her frown as she turned to Furse who looked foolishly pleased with himself.

"I never had anything so lovely," she said to Furse. "They made me feel like a real star."

Before Furse could speak, Marvell answered for him. "They should have been showered upon you from the footlights. You are in the magnificent tradition, Kit. Furse can't afford such nonsense, he thought, but he admired, in spite of himself, a gesture so like his own."

When in the next breath, Kit asked, "Was it awful, that scene on the moon when the wind machine gave out?" Marvell replied instantly, "It was so still you could have heard a pin drop, but when you spoke, Kit, you were the wind!" She laughed affectionately with the others, at his extravagance and he knew she had forgiven him.

When they reached the hotel lobby, the subdued golden lights, the anonymity of mauve carpets stripped them of all their individuality. Ben, without his glasses, had a blurred impression that the party had grown enormously. They filed after Marvell to the checkroom and Nancy and Kit, giddy in the sweet, warm air, walked over to the wide French doors of the supper room where the band could be heard more plainly.

"That's my favorite song they're playing. Honestly," Nancy told Furse who had joined them. She was never still a moment, her silver slippers tiptoeing up and down in impatience. The head waiter spoke to Marvell.

"The birthday party?" he murmured, seeing the white fluffy dresses and the florists' box. "Theatre party for Miss Coomes," said Marvell grandly. They were led to a room at the rear of the dance floor. The stark glitter of the hotel service was relieved by a centerpiece of flowers and corsages waiting primly for the ladies.

"Now this box," Marvell handed it over to the headwaiter, "Miss Coomes wishes to keep fresh—the memory as well as the tribute—will you put these flowers in a cool place?"

"Uncle Ben," called Kit. "There are place cards. See, you sit next to me."

He moved rather grumpily to her side and drew back her chair. He disliked public entertaining of any sort. It was an affront to one's own home and a loss of the good conversation that aided the digestion of good meals. But once he had settled himself between the two girls and clamped his eyes-glasses on his nose, he forgot his personal discomfort in the pleasure he took in seeing women in evening dress. He liked their bare, white arms, their colored silks and the added prettiness they always seemed to derive from music and laughter and a male audience.

There was nothing Marvell liked better than being host. He had carefully considered the various sizes and shapes of his guests in planning the evening, even down to a good soup for Ben whom he knew would depend on something to settle him comfortably. "Are we all set?" he murmured to Fanny who was on his right.

"Perfect. Will they play us a waltz? Later?"

"I've ordered that, and there is a special punch." He saw Furse holding out his hand to Nancy. They would dance well together. He saw Kit look up at Furse as he led Nancy off and Furse's smile in return made Marvell uneasy. They all got up to dance then and when they came back to their table at the end of the number, Fanny was laughing and breathless.

"Did you see your father and me?" asked Fanny. "I never knew he was so expert a dancer! When I realized that we were going to keep that arm's length pose for the whole dance, my heart sank. But it was wonderful—just like swinging."

"My style is free but my own," said Ben, "but quite effective. Just where is the rhythm in these fox-trots and scandals?"

Fanny and Kit exchanged sympathetic glances. Ben, who had met the challenge of the fox-trot by walking Kit backwards round and round the floor, was much more interested in the soup. "A good bisque, this," he said appreciatively.

Furse took a sip of punch and raised an inquiring eye at Marvell. "I know," said Marvell, "tastes like dried apricots in low-grade lead paint. It's our gesture to prohibition."

"You must blame our generation," said Ben, "for relaxing its vigilance to such an extent that we have no champagne tonight to toast a really fine performance, Kit."

"Thank you, Uncle Ben. I wanted you to like me tonight. I wanted you to enjoy the theatre as never before!"

"My dear, I used to be most devoted to the stage and its performers. Who was that extraordinary person, Marvell, who came a great many times to Boston, to the old Tremont theatre?"

"Maude Adams," said Furse. "The man that shot Lincoln," murmured Nancy.

"No, no! Minnie Maddern Fiske! That was it. She had such a natural elegance. That's gone nowadays. I suppose it's the fault of modern plays, they're so emotionless, so understated."

"Well, Ben," Marvell said eagerly, "just come to see Kit in revivals when she plays Boston—Juliet, Maggie Shand..."

"You are going on the stage?" Ben asked Kit incredulously.

"Yes," Marvell answered for her. "I thought you'd guess that by tonight." He sounded disappointed.

"I didn't realize it was to be a vocation. There is no such tradition in the family."

What an old coot he is, thought Nancy, leaning back to catch Kit's eye, but Kit showed her no sign of recognition. She seemed curiously withdrawn.

"You've always thought me a bad actor," Marvell joked, "that's a starter. And women are natural actresses anyway. They are given perfect equipment for it—intuition, curiosity, a desire to please." He did not catch Ben's reply. He was thinking how he always turned Ben's reservations into a lever for his own enthusiasm. Well, nothing could mar his triumph tonight. He looked around him with satisfaction. The principals had been at that earlier party which had been the beginning of this night. Nancy, unknowingly, filled the role of Nedda, and Furse, he grinned at this, substituted for the Stanewski twins—minor characters, not concerned with the deeper issues. The hum of voices rose and fell throughout the room, accented by the closer modulations of his own group. How like a dream it is, thought Marvell. If I should clap my hands, they'd all disappear, except Kit. She was silent as if she, too, were the dreamer. Too silent, he observed with some dismay.

"You tell them, Kit," he broke in upon their laughter, their desultory talk too sharply, "you tell them how hard you've worked for this, how sure you are of your choice."

There was a clean-cut silence and he felt little thrusts of uneasiness in their startled glances. Now what the hell don't they approve of, he asked himself.

Then Kit spoke quickly, "I will do what I have to. It is fated—because it is good." She gave a little smile and looked at Ben. "What kind of philosophy is it, to believe in fate only when it is good and right?"

"The philosophy of innocence," Marvell answered instantly. "And what is better? Not innocence per se, without experience and wisdom, but a freshness of spirit, a trust that to give in hope is to receive in kind. Innocence is vulnerable, then, according to the world, but I have overcome the world! It's my inherent promise." He saw Kit's eyes shining at him across the table.

"Who is the more innocent, I wonder?" smiled Ben, looking from father to daughter.

"Are you too sophisticated to dance with me after hearing that?" Marvell asked Nancy.

"Oh, I'd love to!" Nancy thought the party all rather ancient but she was having a good time because it was a "family" evening, something she was not familiar with, and, a born flirt, she enjoyed enchanting

She had succeeded easily with Ben. She was concentrating now on Marvell. What Kit saw in Mr. Arcy-Furse left her cold, but she knew Kit was in love with him. She had even turned down an invitation to visit Nancy's mother in Paris this summer. Nancy didn't think Marvell knew anything about the invitation or the reason for its refusal. As Marvell's arm encircled her, she looked up at him coaxingly as if she were about to ask a favor, but his knowing smile put her off. She shrugged mentally. It was Kit's affair and if her father was half as wise as he thought he was, he'd find out.

"Shall we dance this one, Fanny?" Ben asked.

"Not just now, dear, if you don't mind. I'd rather watch." They all smiled at Ben's sigh of relief.

"Nancy has triumphed over innocence," said Furse, nodding in the direction of the dance floor.

Fanny turned around. Marvell and Nancy were dancing close together to a staccato fox-trot. She smiled. He's having the most fun of all, she thought, it's his evening really. It means so much to him—almost too much.

Ben had been silent. It distressed him to think that Kit's life was to be a repetition of Marvell's—rebellious, competitive. He would have chosen for her the role of Elizabeth, without its flaws, of course. He saw no sense in a young girl's being involved in the scurrilous, the disappointments of so exacting a profession.

Ad for Wife Gets Results

COLUMBUS, Aug. 12.—(P)—Adam M. P. Voelker, 27, is crying "uncle" in a loud, clear voice—all because of the man shortage.

The ex-G.I., who makes $90 a week as a sheet metal worker, says he just can't accommodate all the women who say they would like to marry him.

It all started last Saturday when Voelker placed an advertisement in the Ohio State Journal. It read:

"Bachelor wants a wife by Sept. 3, 1949. Must be free, white, 21. Or under with parents' or guardian's consent."

Things were quiet over the weekend. He received only one or two calls. Then, Monday morning, the flood of calls began. The phone in the house where he rooms rang constantly. His landlady answered as many calls as she could, taking names and addresses of prospective brides.

When it came time to put out the wash, however, she simply ignored the jangling bell.

Now, Adam is busy every night, dating the girls in hopes he'll find the right mate.

Writing A Song Simple Equation

Music or Words?
Which Comes First?

BY MARK BACRONN
NEW YORK, Aug. 12—(AP)—It is a mere matter of simple equations to write a hit song.

Get a composer and a lyricist who are equal to the same thing (a hit song) and they are equal to each other. Then the world is filled with rhapsody and royalty rewards roll in.

So it says in the best sung plans of the words and music boys.

If you consider a few real life examples, it is evident that it doesn't matter which comes first—the tune or the lyric, the pullet or the putnam. What is important is that hit songs are achieved through mutual collaboration, and sometimes the lyric writers work as hard on suggesting music as the composer works on suggesting that "Hammerstein" rhymes with "Rodgers."

When Richard Rodgers, the music man, and Oscar Hammerstein 2d, the words-with-a-poetic-touch man, began putting together their lovely song by lovely song to create the musical hit, "South Pacific." Composer Rodgers got the gripe and had to take to bed. Hammerstein, working alone and listening to Mary Martin read her lines in rehearsal, got on idea for a poem and wrote it strictly as a poem which he hoped some literary magazine would like and publish with proper credit and mayhays a check for a token $5.

But, the poem expanded into a lyric and became the song you know now as "I'm Gonna Wash That Man (Right) Out-a-my Hair."

Hammerstein sent the lyric up to Rodgers who, risking pneumonia, got right out of bed and composed the music for it before Mrs. Rodgers came into the room and rushed her composer-husband right back into bed. There he recovered, thanks to her, so he could listen to the opening night audience applaud "Some Enchanting Evening." "A Wonderful Guy" and "Bali Hai" the other songs which Hammerstein and Rodgers wrote almost simultaneously.

A few years previously Hammerstein, whom some Tin Pan Alley Smiths contend is more a poet than a lyric writer for popular songs wrote a poem called "The Last Time I Saw Paris." Hammerstein in all honesty, protested that it was a poem, a retrospective bouquet for a beloved city. However, Jerome Kern, composer of the music for "Show Boat" and other Broadway musical hits, set the words to music and it became the sentimental tune which American soldiers whispered while crossing the Atlantic transports.

In that instance Kern wrote the music for a poem he liked, but in other cases he wrote the music and the words. Musical composition was definitely his particular field, but he would sometimes sketch the words which he would have a lyric writer edit into the final form.

More recently there was a soldier recuperating in a GI Army hospital, who wrote a poem called "Powder Your Face With Sunshine" when he saw his nurse powdering her nose in front of a hospital window at dawn. He sent the poem to his favorite orchestra leader, Guy Lombardo who had his brother Carmen write the music for this now hit song.

Probably the most revealing example of who did or who didn't write the words or music first is that song hit of 1919 called "You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet," and the authors of that tune are Al Jolson (to whom it has become as much a trade mark as "Mammy") and Gus Kahn and Bud De Sylva. Jolson, Kahn and De Sylva, all three wrote both words and music, so try to guess who figured out first an ungrammatical concoction as "You Ain't Heard Nothin' Yet." The only undisputed claim is that Jolson can sing it better than anyone!

Songs today are mostly written for stylist singers, vocalists who have a particular and sometimes peculiar style which appeals to audiences without offering them as a performer with a pure voice quality.

Today such top singers as Bing Crosby, Perry Como, Billy Eckstein, Frank Sinatra and Vaughn Monroe and such feminine thrushes as Doris Day, Fran Warren, Jo Stafford, Peggy Lee, Dinah Shore and Lena Horne usually have their song material especially written for them. So a tune or a lyric is built to fit a singer and each one's particular style.

Whether the music comes first or which answer might solve this "which part of the chicken crosses the road first" question, is best expressed by the composer of "The St. Louis Blues." This is the eminent W. C. Handy, now an aged and blind composer, who recently won the plaudits of a first night audience of distinguished guests when he was guided to the center of the Ziegfeld Theater stage and there played on his golden trumpet those unforgettable phrases, "I hate to see that even 'sun go down,' phrases unforgettable in either words or music.

And, when asked, Mr. Handy said "I don't remember, but I just started mumbly to myself and the words and music come together, I guess."

THE PLACE OF MEDICAL CARE IN THE NATION'S EXPENDITURES

Practically every self-sustaining family in the nation can afford some form of the available VOLUNTARY prepaid medical and hospital care plans. They are available through local Medical Societies, Insurance Companies, Blue Cross plan, Industrial Groups, private hospitals and other sources. The above comparative figures, showing the latest compilation before the war, put all the Nation's expenditures for medical care, (including both individual and governmental) just slightly above amounts spent for recreation and those for ice cream, tobacco and soft drinks. The lowest American wage earner daily buys candy, cold drinks and "luxury" items for himself and family. More and more of them every day are seeking and finding the VOLUNTARY PREPAID PLAN that fits the medical and hospital care of their families. VOLUNTARY prepaid health protection allows freedom from "red tape" and freedom to choose the service wanted and required.

mittee and there have been so many of these that there have been delays.

"The Republican 80th Congress approved all appropriations bills by June 15 last year. The Democratic leadership of the 81st can't escape responsibility for the fact that there still are two basic bills which haven't even been brought up for Senate consideration."

Money Bill Ahead

The huge $14,800,000,000 Armed Services Bill seems unlikely to get Senate action before Monday. That was the deadline up to which Congress has authorized departments to operate on funds they don't have officially; a further stopgap provision seems indicated in this case.

Taft noted that the $5,797,000,000 Foreign Aid Bill passed by the Senate was delayed by a point of order by Democratic Senator McClellan of Arkansas, which sent it back to committee for several days.

On the adjournment front, Morse told a reporter he thinks there is a definite move afoot among administration Democrats to delay quitting so that GOP members seeking reelection won't have much time to campaign this year.

"They know that some of us, like Senator Taft of Ohio, Senator Donnell of Missouri and myself are pretty vigorous campaigners and I think they want to hamstring us as much as they can," Morse said.

He added that since Democrats control both Congress and the White House they are in better position to confine themselves to brief campaigns than the Republicans, who are on the outside looking in.

Business Census On In West Part Of Fayette County

Businesses in the western part of Fayette County were being enumerated today by Phil Hart, census enumerator for the Bureau of Census, Department of Commerce.

Hart said he would probably get to Jeffersonville by the early part of next week.

He finished up Washington C. H. business establishments last Tuesday and moved out into the county. He said he enumerated 250 places of business in this community.

A complete tabulation of the business establishments in the county will be available to businessmen within the next nine months, he said.

Ohio Sleeping Pills

A physician's prescription for sleeping potions may not be refilled by a druggist without direct orders of the physician. If a prescription is ordered by telephone, the physician must furnish the druggist with the written order within 72 hours.

All containers of barbiturates must bear the address of the druggist furnishing them, the date the prescription was filled, the serial number of the prescription in the druggist's files, and the name of the physician. It also must bear the name and address of the patient and directions for use of the drug.

The law even makes provisions for use of the drugs for members of the animal family. If the prescription is for your pet or one of your farm animals, the species of the animal must be designated on the label.

Physicians prescribing from their own stock must label the package with his own name and address. Records of such prescriptions must be retained by the physician for two years. No record of the prescription is necessary if it is for not more than 12 grains in any 48 consecutive hours.

Hospitals must keep records of all such drugs and prescriptions the same as druggists and physicians. Physicians also are required to keep records of all barbiturates used by them for other than medical purposes.

Farm Co-Op Holds Employees' Picnic

Ice cream and pop topped off the basket lunches of about 200 picnickers at the Farm Bureau Co-op's annual affair at Gardner Park, Thursday.

Softball games and horseshoe pitching were the chief activities of the male members of the families.

The good time started at 2 P. M. and continued until nightfall.

Co-op employees and their families attended as well as the board members and their families.

Extension service employees also joined in.

Ben Glover and Frank Boso had the job of making sure everybody had ice cream and pop.

Headstones Proposed For Yank War Dead

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12—(AP)—Erection of headstones in family cemetery plots in memory of members of the armed forces who were missing in action or buried at sea would be authorized under a bill introduced yesterday by Rep. Secrest (D-Ohio).

They would be similar in design to those erected over the graves of deceased members of the armed forces in national cemeteries.

Man Injured In Fall from Truck

James Keaton Has Narrow Escape

James Keaton, 19, of 1103 Rawling Street, had a narrow escape from fatal injuries, Thursday night shortly before 10 P. M., when he was thrown from a truck driven by Ronnie Briggs, of East Market Street, as the truck started forward after halting on the Mark Road for U. S. 62 highway.

The truck had stopped for the intersection and Keaton lost his balance and was thrown headlong into the highway as the truck was started in low gear.

The Gerstner ambulance removed Keaton to the office of Dr. Clarence Hayes, where it was found that he had sustained a severe concussion of the brain and was badly bruised and scratched. He was later removed to his home and is expected to recover rapidly.

Mrs. Bertha Hill Dies at Her Home

Mrs. Bertha Hill, 42, died at 2 P. M. Thursday at her home in New Holland.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Funk of New Holland, and leaves a husband, Charles.

Other survivors are five children, Erma Mae, Mamie Louise, Homer Michael and Andy.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of the Hill Funeral Home of Williamsport.
